Figure (a) shows a graph with a correlation coefficient $R^2 = 0.6$. Figure (b) displays a graph with $R^2 = 0.2$, and figure (c) illustrates a graph with $R^2 = 0.1$. These graphs illustrate the relationship between thickness (cm) and aperture (cm) or offset (cm) with the respective correlation coefficients.